

XCEL POWER SYSTEMS WINS MAJOR DEVELOPMENT CONTRACT

XCEL Power Systems - a multi-national manufacturer of defence and aerospace electronic devices and communications equipment, today announced that it has been awarded a contract valued at approximately $1.21 million to design, develop and manufacture custom power systems for a military application in a new ground-based defensive aid system.

The contract includes the design and development of qualification units and the manufacture of production units. Shipment of the qualification units is expected to occur during the fourth quarter of 2010 and the production units are expected to commence shipping in the first quarter of 2011, following completion of system qualification. Future follow-on orders for additional production units are expected.
